It is far easier to prepare made dishes for entrees, salads, or even main dishes, but the ingenuity of the cook is taxed to use bits of leftover desserts in attractive ways. If one has served a plain rice pudding one day the rice may be combined with a custord for a dessert the second, not the following day. Another attractive rice pudding may be prepared by packing the remnants into a mold and when time to serve, turn out and cover the mold with sweetened whipped cream and surround with any fresh, well-sugared berries in their season, or muskmeion, cut in dice, sprinkled with sugar, salt and a bit of nutmeg makes a most attractive and appetizing combination.

If cottage pudding is served, bake a layer or two in a jelly cake tin and have it with a rich filling for a cake to serve with a little dish of fruit for dessert the following day. Or if the pudding Itself is left, drop the pieces in a paper and reheat or steam in a steamer and serve with a custard

Left-over baked custards may be carefully dipped into sherbet cups, a layer of nuts or fruit between, and garnish with cooked egg, white or whipped cream. Cornstarch pudding or rice may be served in the same way. Pieces of pie may be each covered with a meringue and browned, making a very pretty dessert.

Apple sauce may be placed in ramekins, cover with a rich pastry and bake; serve hot or cold.

Blanc-mange when made molded in individual molds, if any is left over, may be cut in two and served with a different sauce, adding variety without waste.

Stenmed chocolate pudding, cut in Mices and put together with an orange filling, may be served in small cakes with a cup of tea for luncheon.

LESSON FOR JULY 16

PAUL AT ATHENS.

LESSON TEXT-Acts 17:16-34. GOLDEN TEXT-In him we live, and move and have our being. - Acts 17:28.

Athens! What a name to conjure with. Athens has always epitomized the acme of intellectualism, culture, art, and esthetic accomplishment. Driven from Berea and alone, Paul fied to the coast and taking ship crossed over to the Thessalonian peninsula. Entering the city-he beholds its statuary, meets its philosophers and views its moral degradation and its myriad manifestations of heathenism. Out of the world, yet it passed from its pinnacle of power because it knew not Shop Witticisms Inflicted on Every cultured Stoics and the Epicureans, who because of their distant and but little concerned gods, enjoyed the pleasure of wealth and ease.

I. Paul Brought to Trial (vv. 16-21) Such sights stirred the spirit of Paul. The marvel is how indifferent we may become in the presence of the great spiritual poverty of our time. His spirit stirred within him, when he saw the city crowded with idols. As Paul followed his custom and began his preaching in the synagogue he also took advantage of the opportunity to do open-air work in the market place. Here a small group and there another. This he did daily until the teachers (v. 18) began to take knowledge of his presence in their city. Some in contempt called him a "babbler," while others concluded that he represented some new religion, though he set before them the same message of salvation in Jesus Christ which had caused such remarkable results elsewhere. That they might hear him more fully and without the interruption of the it spins a thread. Then pour boiling mart of trade, Paul is taken to the Areopagus, or Mars Hill, where from time immemorial the greatest criminals had been sentenced and the most solemn questions of religion settled.

II. The Unknown Made Known, (vv. 22-29). Such idle speculation (v. 21) was of no value to the Athenians. This Paul knew, yet he began his address in a most condiliatory manner (v. 22 R. V.). He would win their favorable milk, a half teaspoonful of gelatin, a attention before he called them to refourth of a cupful of sugar, one egg pentance. Keenly observant, Paul had seen among the many inscriptions one "to the unknown God," and this one whom in ignorance they wershiped, he would set forth. Many today are in blindness, seeking to know God when he has already been made manifest (to be seen). (John 1:18; John 5:20; John 14:9; II Cor. 4:6.) It is man's own fault if he does not know God (Rom. 1:20-22, 28; II Cor. 4:4), and no knowledge is more important (John 17:3), Paul's opening words in verse 24 were but to seize a well-known object of their street decoration and discussions and with it to lead on to the great truth he yearned to have them comprehend. This caught the philosophers as well as the idle curious. God is not a philosophic conception of the mind. He cannot be confined to temples made with hands nor does he need the services of our hands, seeing he created all things and giveth to all things life. Paul's next point was that "He hath made of one every nation of men." As yet now fittle men really keep up my parasol." believe that truth-witness the European conflict and the economic, racial and social differences of this land. Negro segregation and Asiatic exclusion are but illustrations of our separation from the teaching of the brotherhood of man. But this brotherhood is not alone for altruistic service but "that they should seek God." This was his great and glorious purpose in creating the nations of the earth, in setting the seasons in motion, to minister to their needs, and in appointing the bounds of their habitations; yet how far man has departed from that ideal (Rom, 1:23). It is of the highest importance that men should seek God and he is not difficult to find for those who seek him (Jer. 29:13). III. What the Athenians Lacked

(vv. 30-34). Thus far Paul's auditors must have followed him keenly, and it was the gcal toward which he had been driving so relentlessly. Such sublime conceptions, keen logic and quotations from their writers won their attention. He then delivered a keen thrust at this, the "psychological moment," by calling upon them to "repent." The Athenians lacked a realizing sense of the personality of Godthat man could have personal and intimate relations with God or that a man could or had risen from the Subway Development.

The first "subways" were cuts for pipes and wires, large enough for a man to walk in, and supplied with inspection openings. These were installed in Paris by Napoleon III. The Chicago street traffic subways were first built in 1866-71. But in our general modern acceptance of the word, the first "subways" were those of the deep underground steam railway of London, built in 1886. The first "real subway" in the United States was that in Boston, 1897.

You have no doubt all heard of the left-hand monkey wrench" which every new apprentice in a wagon works is sent after, and of the "Italic thin space" which the printer's devil usually is sent to get, but William S. Coy, county superintendent of schools, bit hard on one not quite so well known when he assumed his duties as a bookkeeper in a plumbing shop during one of the vacations of his high school days.

There was grumbling among the hands because of something that a neighboring plumber had borrowed and which he had failed to return. The bookkeeper finally decided to help out and offered to go to the borrower and secure the needed article. His offer was quickly accepted.

"What is it?" he inquired. "We want our pipe stretcher," an-
